CRNs Stephanie Clark and Jill Moore recently made a trip to Kijabe, Kenya, supported by Vanderbilt International Anesthesia (VIA). In Kijabe, they served as KRNA educators by delivering classroom lectures and by teaching every day in the theatre. Although their time spent in Kenya was short, they believe their visit made an impact on the program because it allowed the KRNA students to affiliate themselves with professionals in their field and thus begin to see themselves as professionals.

"We feel honored to have been the first CRNs to make the commitment to Kijabe . . . and hope this will encourage other CRNs from Vanderbilt to be a part of the KRNA training in Kijabe in the future!"
